

Mistake in issue 4/2019, design 21 (Nature Kids anorak)

The portion of the hood facing along the hood center panel is missing from the hood facing pattern (pattern piece 7). We are deeply sorry for the mistake.

You can print out this page to obtain the corrected hood facing pattern. The missing portion has been added to pattern piece 7b. The red dashed lines indicate the original, incorrect pattern lines. Make sure to set your printer to print at actual size (i.e. with no scaling or at 100%). Check that the test square on the printed pattern measures 5 cm x 5 cm. Join the pattern pieces 7a + 7b before cutting the facing from fabric. Place the center-front edge of the facing pattern (indicated by a dashed line) on the fabric fold when cutting the facing out.

Note!

If you already cut the hood facing using the incorrect pattern piece and have too little fabric left for cutting it out again, don't worry. You can only cut the missing portion from the fabric and stitch it to the already-cut facing. Note that the length of the missing portion depends on the pattern size.

Trace the pattern piece for the missing portion of the facing from the pattern for the hood center panel (see the red area on the small-scale pattern piece 6 above). Cut the already-cut facing in half along the center-front line. When cutting out the missing portion, remember to add extra seam allowances to its short edges to compensate for the missing seam allowances on the original facing that was cut on the fabric fold. Stitch the facing pieces together and press the seams open. Continue constructing the anorak following the instructions in the magazine.
